

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

some question. "The real question is whether one has had an experience which has taken him out of sin and the love of sin into the faith and fellowship of the Son of God" (p. 11).

The book is marred by an unusual number of oversights in proof-reading, such as: "The Wise Men brought their treasurers of gold and frankincense and myrrh" (p. 24); "Elisha with his cruise of salt" (p. 31); the title "Lady of Thyatira" (p. 51); "the crowing triumph of patience" (p. 106); "a career of wordliness" (p. 132); "the dismal straightnesses and agonies" (p. 184); "hailing men and women to prison" (p. 278). Other examples almost as bad may be noticed on pp. 25, 81, 136, 199, 222, 223, 245, 268, and 315. Twice on p. 217 Cornelius instead of Peter is located at Joppa.

Those interested in practical sermonic literature will find here a volume calculated both to please and to instruct. It will be useful as long as revivals are being held and human hearts are asking for help to find their way to God.

D. A. HAYES.

GARRETT BIBLICAL INSTITUTE,
Evanston, Ill.

New Wine Skins. Present Day Problems. [Lectures delivered before the Maine Ministers' Institute, at Cobb Divinity School.] Edited by PROFESSOR A. W. ANTHONY. Boston: Morning Star Publishing House, 1901. Pp. 302. $1.50.

In the ten lectures which this volume contains we have an interesting and able exposition of biblical Christianity as applied to the problems of modern life. Dr. J. H. W. Stuckenberg furnishes three of the lectures, upon "The Meaning and Scope of Sociology," "The Nature of Society," and "The Social Forces." A fourth lecture is by Professor F. C. Robinson, of Bowdoin College, upon "Science and Religion." The fifth is by Rev. C. S. Patton, upon "Herbert Spencer and the Christian Faith." Then follow two lectures upon "Biblical Interpretation," the first by Rev. A. T. Salley, D.D., who discusses "The Advantages of the Historical Method of Studying the Old Testament;" the second, by Professor A. W. Anthony, upon "The Framework of the New Testament Evangel." The remaining three lectures deal with practical Christian work, and are contributed by Rev. C. S. Patton, on "The Minister's Personality and Methods;" by Professor B. F. Hayes, D.D., on "Modern Methods of Evangelization;" and by Rev. C. M. Sheldon, on "Opportunities before the Church Today."

The treatment of these subjects is throughout scholarly and thoughtful. The style of them is lucid and vigorous. It is manifest on every page that the lecturers are speaking with knowledge, with the wisdom of experience, and with the strong conviction as to what can and ought to be accomplished by the present generation in the field of Christian activity. Although the addresses were first delivered before a body of ministers, they cannot fail to be of interest to everyone who is concerned with the problems of religion. Many persons who still oppose the newer thought and methods will find in this volume much that will help them to a clearer and larger idea of progressive Christianity.

J. W. BAILEY.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO.

Ecclesiastes and Omar Khayyám: A Note for the Spiritual Temper of Our Time. By JOHN FRANKLIN GENUNG. New York: T. Y. Crowell & Co., 1901. Pp. 32. $0.35.

A real service is performed for the Bible-reading public when some neglected aspect of Scripture-teaching is brought forth from the quarry and held up to the light. In the present instance the all too brief treatment of a suggestive theme only serves to awaken the reader's desire for larger gems of the same cutting. The "spiritual temper of our time," to which the author addresses himself, is not the "yearning uneasy mood of In Memoriam," but "the epicurean sentiment of Omar Khayyám." The changed temper he regards as the fruit of modern skepticism, and as rather wholesome than otherwise. At any rate, it is a phenomenon to be reckoned with, and one which signifies a popular reaction from the delusive notions of heaven as a place for rectifying the mistakes of earth. Omar and the Hebrew sage are in striking agreement here when they insist that today is ours to make the most of, while tomorrow is a veil through which we may not see. To be sure, Omar stands upon a lower plane than Ecclesiastes; his paradise consists in today's enjoyment and the sensuous dreams of the lotus-eaters. The preacher, on the other hand, has learned that these things are vanity, and that life's God-given happiness is to be found, not in play or pay, but in the actual performance of the daily round and the common task. But this one-sided message of the two old sages is supplemented and made complete by the vitalizing ideals of the gospel.

The monograph will be chiefly valuable in suggesting other comparative studies of a similar character.

ARTHUR BUMSTEAD.

BOSTON, MASS.